Sad, Sad Story

Don't breathe a word of this to a soul. You see, we're trying to forget Friday night. After Sonora got through running our lads through the ringer the locals looked like they had the D. T.'s—and we don't mean Drill Team.

Those Sonora fellows couldn't have played better if we offered the majorettes for prizes! We shall mercifully overlook the B game score—suffice to say that it was decisive—and sing the praises of our A team. They put on a fourth quarter spurt that brought them to within five points of Sonora as the horn sounded.

The rooting section broke their precedent of giving whispering yells—(every yell was a whisper, the way they did it)—and astounded the townspeople with some yells that almost tore the roof off the gym.

The drill team and the majorettes did their bit to cheer up a rather sad evening for the home crowd, with as flashing a display of feminine pulchritude as we've ever seen. They were enough to make even our coaches crack a smile or two.

First, and Second Aid

The drill team took over the local bowling Friday afternoon for their party, and a rip roaring one it was, too. Having lost about ten pounds each, throwing those bowling balls around, the girls should have eaten the school cafeteria right out of existence, but somehow or other, there was some ice cream and cake left over. Ah, ah, ah, don't rush; you're too late Commissioner of Finance Flash Allen and Vice Principal M. E. Wright—two gentlemen of noble capacity—gave the girls a helping hand by feeding the excess food to two very hungry men: namely Wright and Allen.

Who wants to go to the Older Girls' Conference? Well, so far, four boys have signed up!

Puppets are Coming

It'll only cost you twenty-five cents to see this puppet show, and there are no strings attached to this offer. The puppeteers wish they could say the same for those puppets! But this is only a part of the Girls' League talent show. You'll see a little bit of everything—singing, dancing, novelty acts, musical numbers—you name it, we've got it. It's first come, first served, so be there at 8 o'clock with your ticket in your hand.

We've got a new driver for the Somersett bus—Mr. De Groot.

Secret's Out

Company D has taken over our new gym. To avert a tragedy, we hereby warn the sentries that those heads that keep bobbing in and out of the doors, and the people who are forever finding themselves on errands that take them past the gym, are not fifth columnists, or even future Mata Haris, but just a few girls who can't resist the sight of a man in uniform.

Baseball

About seventy fellows have signed up for the baseball team, so there is one championship we're out to win even if we have to field five teams at a time!—In row boats.

REBEKAH TO GREET DEPUTY PRESIDENT AT MEETING ON MARCH 17th

The regular meeting of Leona Rebekah Lodge on Monday night of this week completed plans for the meeting on Monday, March 17, when District Deputy President Frances Ruud will pay her official visit to the order.

Ida Bailey will be chairman for the evening and the meeting also will honor the March birthday anniversaries of members.

COUNCIL WILL MEET AGAIN MARCH 17

Conferences Proposed On Sidewalks And On Garbage Disposal

The regular meeting of the city council Monday evening adjourned to meet again on Monday evening March 17.

Highlights in the meeting included agreement to call a conference of property owners along upper Canal Street, relative to sidewalks; and decision to invite Paul Belli, of Perkins, to meet with the council to discuss some of the things which might be included in an ordinance providing for garbage collection service.

Belli has written the council several times in recent months and his most recent letter was read to the council relative to garbage disposal.

It served to open up a general discussion of the subject during which Councilman Howard Lewis spoke of unsatisfactory garbage disposal in the community as a health menace and declared that with a garbage disposal ordinance the city "can control an unsanitary condition and net a profit."

Expressing approval of a garbage collection service in some form, Councilman Philip Frost suggested that if the city did not care to engage in the business, a franchise could be advertised and let.

Councilman Charles Molinari expressed opposition to any compulsory features in a garbage ordinance and it was recalled that a proposed ordinance which was before the council several months ago eliminated any compulsion to subscribe to a garbage collection service.

At this stage of the discussion, in consideration of probable presentation of a new ordinance providing for such service, it was suggested that Belli be asked to meet with the council at its adjourned meeting.

Other business of the meeting included tentative approval of plans by Gene Morrison to erect a building on Upper Main Street near the (Continued on Page Three)

AAA Program For Year Starting

Interested Farmers Should Call At Association Office And Discuss Practices

Farmers interested in participating in the AAA program for 1941 should call in the immediate future at the offices of the Agricultural Conservation, 489 Main Street, and discuss the program and the practices most desirable for their farm.

According to George H. Volz, association secretary, forms which list the "Total Soil Building Allowance" for each farm in the county are now being prepared. The forms will show the maximum amount which will be paid for compliance in soil building practices on any one farm. "Several new practices have been included in the program for 1941 that are of special concern to orchardists," Mr. Volz said. "One of them pays seventy-five cents per acre for maintaining a permanent cover crop on orchards subject to erosion. Another, under the head Supplemental Practices, provides that at least fifty per cent of the total of crop land and orchard be devoted to permanent grasses or legumes.

"If this requirement is met, the operator can earn up to $1.00 per acre by applying one hundred pounds of ammonium sulphate. Operators having less than a $20 soil-building allowance may also qualify for this practice."

30 DEAD, HUNDREDS LOSE HOMES IN FLOODS IN PERU

LIMA, Peru. (UP)—A total of 30 dead, many missing, and hundreds homeless, was reported today from the flooded north central coastal regions of Peru.

The swollen waters of the Parcoy river, in the Parcoy mining area, swept away a workers' camp, and 16 persons, including a woman and three small children, were drowned.

The Chicama river, which flows through a valley of great sugar plantations, caused great damage.

"Unknown" Becomes Film Star

Partly because of her extraordinary gift for whistling, Mauricette Melbourne (above) daughter of an Australian physician, has been selected for starring roles in Hollywood. A former concert pianist, she made her debut at Buckingham Palace. Lately, she has been a guest star on American radio programs.

COUNTY IN SPOTLIGHT FOR NATIONAL ADVERTISING

Gold Days Historic Lore Will Be Used By General Electric Company In Introducing New Educational Campaign On Lighting

El Dorado County is in position to bask in the spotlight of nation-wide publicity and advertising by the General Electric Company as a result of arrangements recently concluded between the company and committees active for the El Dorado County Historical Society and the County Chamber of Commerce.

The G-E plans shortly to introduce a national educational and advertising campaign announcing a "Forty-Niner Club" made up of users of 49-foot candles of artificial light.

In connection with the same campaign, the company also will introduce a new fluorescent lighting fixture called "The Forty-Niner."

And because the General Electric Company is pioneering in "better light for better sight," it has come to El Dorado county, goal of the pioneers, to introduce its Forty-Niner Club and the new fluorescent lighting fixture, "The Forty-Niner."

Final arrangements for El Dorado County's participation in the campaign were concluded at a luncheon Friday at Hotel Raffles attended by members of the budget and publicity committees of the chamber of commerce, and the building committee of the El Dorado County Historical Society, representatives of the General Electric Company and the local press.

CITY FILES TWO SUITS IN MAIN STREET WIDENING

Two suits in behalf of the City of Placerville and against E. A. Brewster, relative to the Main Street widening project between Bedford Avenue and Clay Street, were on file in Superior Court Tuesday. The complaints were prepared by City Attorney Richard Barry.

One action is to quiet title to approximately 173 square feet of land, claimed to belong to the city, which is within the fence around property owned by the defendant opposite the Frey Garage.

The second action is to condemn a right of way through the property of the defendant in keeping with the Main Street set-back line adopted several months ago.

An affidavit of appraisal of the property presented by City Engineer Clifton Wildman is filed with the latter complaint and sets the value of the land sought to be acquired as $138. An order for possession has been issued.

Threat Increases

SAN FRANCISCO, (UP)—The latest Pacific coast storm retreated to the north today, and winds of gale force dropped to a moderate, or strong, intensity.

Light showers were predicted today and tomorrow, and another storm brewed 1,800 miles at sea.

It rained heavily at the Sacramento river's headwaters, raising a new flood threat in the Sacramento valley. The river had broken its levee at Butte City, inundating hundreds of acres of rich farmland.

Lowlands around the San Joaquin, Stanislaus and Tuolumne rivers also were flooded, but damage was slight.

Nazis Mildly Rebuff Reds

Moscow, Berlin Statements Are Construed To Indicate "Coolness" In Relations

By UNITED PRESS

British sources believed today that Russia, by placing on record her disapproval of the entry of Nazi troops into Bulgaria, had given Germany a tacit warning to keep hands off Turkey.

Statements issued at Moscow and Berlin indicated coolness between the Nazis and the Communist empires.

A German spokesman said the Reich "can tolerate no restrictions on measures deemed necessary to defeat Britain." That appeared to warn Russia that Germany would place military requirements ahead of any fear of alienating the Soviet.

The German spokesman rejected the Soviet thesis that entry of the troops tended to spread the war and involve Bulgaria in hostilities and claimed that Bulgaria merely had "anticipated" the possibility of being drawn into the war and had taken precautionary measures by inviting in Nazi forces.

British commentators said it appeared that Russian and British interests were drawing a little closer because of their mutual interest in keeping the Dardanelles out of German hands.

Berlin gave the first open indication today that the Bulgarian move was designed to bring pressure on Greece to end the Italian war. Berlin announced that relations with Greece are "not good."

BEAUTY MARKS APPLIANCES

Display Will Be Arranged In Lobby And Main Hall At Cooking School

It is expected that the home appliance display at the Happy Kitchen Cooking School, in the main auditorium and the lobby of the Shakespeare Clubhouse, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week, will be one of outstanding beauty and variety, according to those in charge.

The General Electric exhibit furnished through the courtesy of Don Goodrich of the Sportsman's Shop, will be arranged in the lobby, and will consist of a complete kitchen unit of refrigerator, range, water heater and metal kitchen cabinets. The latter is a new item added to Mr. Goodrich's stock this year. In addition there will be one or two extra models of refrigerators, washing machine, ironer and radio.

Inside the main auditorium and directly to the left as one enters, will be found the neatly arranged display of the Walt D. Snow Western Auto Supply Co. Here will be shown latest models of Western Royal electric refrigerators, Western Beacon washer and portable ironer, and Western Royal and Motorola Radios.

Along the east side of the main hall will be arranged the gleaming white appliances of the Furniture Exchange. Here will be seen two and possibly three current models of Westinghouse electric refrigerators, a Westinghouse electric range, Apex Washing machine, a Westinghouse washing machine, and a Coleman gas range.

The Clubhouse will be open each afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, the cooking school session begins at 2 and lasts until 4; after which the hall will be open until 5 o'clock. On Thursday night the hall will be open from 7 until 10, during which time there will be featured as a special entertainment program and free motion picture show. There will be two films, "Building A Home With Western Pine" and "Sutter's Empire."

During any of this time the hall is open, citizens of the county are welcome to come in and see the latest in modern and up-to-date home appliances and labor-saving devices. Admission is free and there will be door prizes given at the close of each session of the cooking school.

NEW CHINA CAFE OPEN FOR BUSINESS IN REMODELED HOME

Among the noteworthy improvements in Main Street business properties is the recent completion of remodeling of the building housing the New China Cafe, on Main Street opposite the new Pear Bowl.

The building is owned by Walter Preddy and the management in the cafe suspended business several weeks ago while remodeling, at the direction of the building owner, was completed.

The new building is a credit to Main Street, to its owner and to the management of the New China Cafe, who are again doing business at the old location.

Lorene Roberts was in town from Sacramento on Tuesday.

In Miami, Jim Talbot, adventurer, meets James Long, his exact double. Long is about to sail for Costa Rica, Central American republic, in response to a mysterious appeal from Zachary Webb, veteran soldier of fortune. When unknown plotters slay Long, Jim assumes his identity and sails in his place, to thwart his enemies. Aboard ship, he learns that the man who wants "Long" out of the way. He falls in love with Strade's beautiful secretary, Vara. In Costa Rica, he learns from Zach Webb and his friend, Don Jose Alvarado de Montez, that Strade is fomenting a revolution to gain control of nitrate deposits for a group of European munitions makers. Long's dead father, who saved Costa Rica in a crisis years ago, is a national hero, and Zach believes that his son—supposedly Jim—can turn the natives against Strade. First, however, they plan to destroy a cache of munitions in a warehouse of Strade's.

CHAPTER XIX

WHEN Jim retired to his room that night, he sat for a long time, thinking things over. What a shock it would be to Zach and Don Jose if they but knew that this man who they thought was James Long—this man in whom they placed so much faith—was, in fact, an impostor. Was it right to go on deceiving them?

Then, he convinced himself that it was. The job they wanted done could be done only by James Long. If he confessed the truth as to his identity, their whole plan for thwarting Strade's revolutionary schemes would be wrecked. Even if he made them believe and understand his reasons for coming here in Long's place, he was sure they would never consent to foisting him on the natives as Long.

In the belief that he was Long, they were staking everything on him. He could not now destroy their belief in him. Until he had accomplished what they expected of him, and until he had accomplished his own initial purpose of foiling Long's murderers, he must think of himself as James Long—must actually be James Long—afterward, well, he would let the future take care of itself.

It was noon the next day before Jim awoke. When he went downstairs, he found Zach and Don Jose in the library, with papers spread out before them on the table.

"These are the plans for our trip through the interior," Don Jose explained. "Here is a marked map showing the course we shall follow, and here is a schedule of the trip. We have made, too, a list of the names of the village headmen. It would be well for you to familiarize yourself with their names."

"Yes," said Jim. "I'll do that this afternoon. I'd also like to brush up on my Spanish."

As he ate breakfast, they told him what they had accomplished that morning.

"I sent out a secret call for patriotic volunteers to aid us in burning the warehouse this morning," Zach said. "I have met with them, and everything is arranged. Shortly after nightfall, they will gather at a spot near the warehouse. They will take the guards by surprise, overwhelm them, and surround the place. They will wait, then, until we arrive."

Jim nodded. "I don't believe," he said, "that they will have much trouble with guards. I saw only one there last night."

He spent most of the afternoon refreshing his meager knowledge of Spanish.

They had an early dinner, in order to be ready to leave for the warehouse as soon as night fell.

At the table, Jim sat opposite Dolores. Throughout the meal, her eyes were so frankly adoring, that he became embarrassed.

Evidently, the romantic young seniorita had been badly smitten with hero worship. Jim, not wanting to encourage this, avoided her gaze as much as possible without appearing rude, and breathed a sigh of relief when the meal was ended.

As he and the two old men prepared to depart, Dolores came forward and laid her hand on Jim's arm.

"You—you will be careful?" she said anxiously.

Jim laughed, and patted her hand. "Of course."

Don Jose was smiling. "I see you have made a conquest, Jeemie. My daughter does not seem to care what happens to her poor old father—or to Senor Webb—so long as you are safe!"

THEY made the trip to the warehouse by car, following a lonely dirt road that skirted the jungle.

As they neared their destination, Zach, who was at the wheel, slowed down, then drew to a halt at a spot where he had arranged to meet the leader of their band of confederates.

A man carrying a rifle stepped out of the shadows and approached the car. He spoke to Zach in Spanish.

Zach turned to Jim. "That's strange," he said. "They had no guards at all. All they had to do was walk up and surround the place! Do you suppose Strade has had the munitions removed to some other cache?"

"That is strange," Jim agreed. "But I saw only one guard last night. Perhaps the fellow has gone off somewhere to get a drink."

Zach shrugged. "I hadn't expected it to be so easy!"

Picking up the man with the rifle, he drove on toward the warehouse. He stopped at a safe distance from it.

In the moonlight, shadowy figures could be seen deployed around the building. Zach, followed by Jim and Don Jose, climbed out of the car and gave a few brief orders to the leader.

The men, who all carried torches, were to light them and have them ready. Zach would then fire his revolver into the air. At that signal, they would all apply their torches to the building—then run. They must be well clear of it before the flames reached the ammunition in the upstairs room.

PRESENTLY, the torches, all lit, were casting a weird reflection on the surrounding landscape. To Jim, watching, it seemed like a scene out of some fantastic dream. Unreal.

Then, Zach was pointing his revolver in the air. A shot shattered the stillness of the night.

An instant later, the sides of the building were enveloped in leaping, crackling flames—and men were running pell mell away from the blaze.

"Come on!" Zach said to Jim. "We must get out of range of that ammunition!"

Jim, however, hesitated a moment, enjoying the spectacle of the fire.

"Come on!" Zach said again, seizing his arm. "Do you want—"

He stopped short, staring.

The doors of the warehouse had suddenly been flung open from within, and two figures had dashed out of the blazing building, yelling in Spanish at the tops of their lungs. Evidently the missing guards.

Zach's hand on Jim's arm tightened convulsively.

"Good Lord!" he gasped. "They say there's a girl in there!"

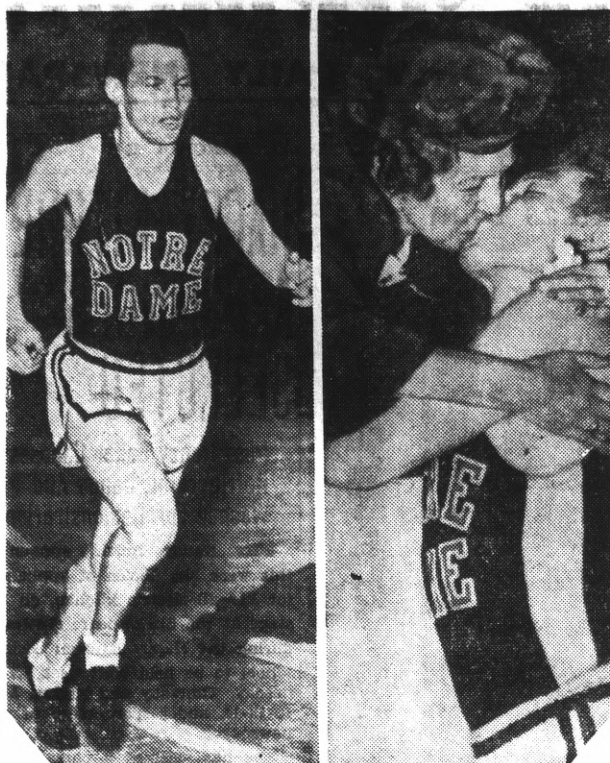

In a split second, he had jerked away from Zach and was racing toward the flaming warehouse.

A girl! Vara! It must be she! There was no time for thought as he raced toward the flaming warehouse.

Parents—Teachers In Accord

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

Often in this column, and in addresses before teachers, I urge them to be considerate of parents and children. Recently an elementary supervisor said to me, "I wish you would write to them, to be considerate also of teachers." Then she cited examples of harmful attitudes by parents toward teachers and indiscreet remarks by parents to certain very conscientious and sensitive teachers.

What impressed me most in the supervisors' observation was her statement that such inconsiderate attitudes and remarks from parents most often come from those of the higher economic and educational brackets. "Parents of the less educated and less privileged," she said, "usually have a very fine attitude toward teachers. Hardest to satisfy, as a rule," she added, "are ex-teachers who are parents."

This latter phenomenon I have mentioned in this column. Often, indeed I have said or written to the ex-teacher mother to remind her that she is likely to be over-critical of the teacher, and that the teacher, knowing her to be such, is on this very account over-sensitive to her criticism.

Understanding Necessary

What we all want to do is to acquire understanding and appreciation one of the other—teacher of parent, parent of teacher, teacher and parent of children and children of parents. Of the children we do not expect too much, since they lack breadth of experience to draw upon. Yet, more than we realize, we parents can help the child, especially of teen-age, to put himself in the teacher's place.

Much of my life I have been both parent and teacher. I have tried hard to look through the eyes of both. Also to see from the viewpoint of the child. I suppose the best thing is never to look too long through the same eyes but always to keep shifting back and forth.

Different Backgrounds

This applies not only to these relationships but in wider human relationships as well. We would be so much happier and make others so much happier, and others would like us so much more and cooperate so much better if we were to achieve more in these directions.

In regard to teachers, we parents need to remind ourselves that the teacher has many children, every one different from the other one, with different home backgrounds and different backgrounds of emotions and experiences. As teachers we need to keep in mind that parents do not always know what we are driving at and that they have experiences and emotions we cannot entirely appreciate. Nor can we as parents and teachers wholly appreciate the child's point of view. Nevertheless we can all grow a little wiser and more discerning in these directions if we try hard enough.

The HAPPY KITCHEN

NANCY BAKER
Noted Economist

Do you cook by mathematics or by calisthenics? Calisthenics are fine in their place, but the place isn't in the kitchen. It's much easier to cook by a recipe of one part mathematics, two parts ingenuity, and a large-sized portion of fun and adventure.

There's really no need at all for back-breaking drudgery in this modern day and age. There are undiscovered worlds of new things to make, new ways to make the old dishes better, "hurry-up" time-savers and wife-savers, and hosts of short-cuts to meals more delicious than Epicurus ever dreamed. And they're all so easy and so simple— you don't have to spend the whole family budget or even a very big slice of it for them. You'll wonder, when you hear them, how in the world you've missed thinking of these joyous aids to happier meals before this.

If you want to hear about the latest fashions in foods, and the way to make them with less work and more fun, we have a treat in store for you—our FREE Cooking School. It has been arranged by practical experts on cookery — and it will be crammed full of suggestions to brighten your kitchen for a whole year. Every comfort has been provided, you'll get lots of entertaining surprises —and all you have to do is just Come!

Stewart Says—

Is Doctoring Trade?
Trial of A. M. A.
May Settle Point

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

IS DOCTORING a trade, a profession or a business?

If it's a trade it appears that the American Medical association, a couple of its affiliates, five of its officers and 15 of its rank-and-file members, now on trial in Washington on charges of having violated the Sherman anti-trust law, can't be convicted.

According to the United States supreme court, with a dissenting opinion or two, legislation against monopolistic practices doesn't apply to trade unions.

So, if the medicating and surgical craft is a trade, the accused docs can't very well be found guilty, because the assumption is that the A. M. A. is a union rather than a professional or commercial organization.

But if the docs are professionals or businessmen, not mere skilled laborers, and if it's proved that they really have tried to smother competition, then they're liable to be socked under the Sherman act.

John Henry Lewin, as a special assistant attorney general, is pushing the prosecution for the federal justice department, but the department launched the case at the behest of what's known as the Group Health association. It's a co-operative outfit created about three years ago by a combination of federal employees, with a view to getting themselves doctored at their joint expense whenever they needed doctoring. The group's members ante regularly into a common pot and the docs are paid out of it.

A. M. A. Versus G. H. A.

Prosecutor Lewin's story is that the A. M. A., scenting prospective competition, began fighting the G. H. A. before it ever succeeded in getting into full operation. Nevertheless, the latter finally perfected itself and opened a clinic in the capital. Also, when a group member committed himself to the care of a non-G. H. A. hospital he wanted a G. H. A. doctor to attend him there.

Thereupon, says Prosecutor Lewin, A. M. A. docs began warning their kind of hospitals not to allow G. H. A. docs on their premises. Furthermore it's charged that, when a G. H. A. doc occasionally needed help or advice from some A. M. A. specialist, the A. M. A. practitioner sabotaged the patient by delay or deliberate bungling.

The A. M. A.'s version is that its docs don't like to associate with the G. H. A.'s because the group's bunch are punk as doctors. It maintains further that the G. H. A. plan involves the socialization of medicine and surgery, and a decided lowering of their present standard. It isn't solely a Washington row, either. The A. M. A.'s scope is national and the G. H. A. is spreading all over the country.

The indicted physicians (yes, it's a criminal trial, for conspiracy) includes General Manager Olin West of the American Medical association, Editor Morris Fishbein of its official journal, and a lot of Chicagoans as well as Washingtonians.

Long Trial Foreseen

The trial's due to take weeks in the District of Columbia court and after that the case will be appealed, of course.

To begin with, if the prosecution's successful, it will have to prove that the accused docs really did conspire. Then, if they did, the defense's contention will be that they didn't conspire to do anything unlawful.

They did (if convicted) if the A. M. A.'s business setup is like the Standard Oil company or some such corporation. Perhaps they did if they're professionals; that issue hasn't yet been ruled on. But they didn't if they're a trade union; not if the United States stands pat on its majority decision in what's known as the Hutcheson case.

That was a ruckus between two rival unions of carpenters.

The aggrieved union argued that the other union had constituted itself a monopoly, in violation of anti-restraint-of-trade legislation. Well, the supreme court held that, while such legislation is in the federal statute book all right, it isn't applicable to trade unions.

Now, do doctors classify with carpenters? The question remains to be adjudicated.

"KEEPING COMPANY" TOPS EMPIRE PROGRAM FOR TUESDAY NIGHT

An ideal "family" picture, filled with side-splitting laughs interspersed by tender young romance, will make its appearance at the Empire Theatre with the showing of "Keeping Company," tonight.

The romantic comedy presents Frank Morgan at his laugh-provoking best and Ann Rutherford and John Shelton as a pair of young screen lovers comparable with the finest. Playing their most ambitious roles to date, both Miss Rutherford and Shelton furnish proof in "Keeping Company" that they are rapidly nearing the threshold of stardom.

The story deals with a couple of young newlyweds and their trials and tribulations, especially when a quarrel—their first quarrel—arrives. That is occasioned by the boy's sweetheart and her flirtatious plotting to separate the youngsters. She does, too, but the families of the newlyweds bring them together with some hilarious scheming on their own part.

LEGION ESSAY CONTEST CLOSING APRIL 10, CHAIRMAN NOTES

The annual American Legion essay contest for grammar school pupils of the county closes on April 10, and not March 10.

A news report last week mentioned latter date, and immediately, Chairman Sam Hern reports, he was deluged with inquiries about the matter.

"That," he declared, "proves that your paper gets around."

While we are unable to state how the mistake in dates arose, we are happy to make the correction.

Chairman Hern reports the subject is "The American Flag and What It Means To Me." There are two contests, one for pupils in rural schools and another for pupils in the Placerville grammar school. First, second and third awards will be presented in each division at special programs during Public Schools Week, opening April 28th.

COMPANY D CANTEEN FUND IS SWELLED BY MANY CONTRIBUTIONS

The canteen fund of Company D, 115th Engineers, California National Guard, has reached a total in excess of $108, it was learned Tuesday from a group which has been active in creating the fund.

The group noted that the fund was not so large until the Camino Timbriños gave a dance Saturday night and contributed $60 to the fund.

In addition to several whose names were noted as contributors when creation of the fund was first mentioned, there have been additional recent contributions to the fund as follows: Timbriños, $60; Memory Chapel, $25.00; two anonymous contributions aggregating $5.25; and a contribution of $10 by a Camino lumberman.

Placerville Lions at their meeting voted $25 to the company canteen fund.

GOLD HILL NOTES

We are all hoping that the ground hog's influence on the weather will soon be over. Each day brings rain and more rain, and since March is being ushered in in such a tumultuous fashion we are wondering what to expect next.

On Friday last the wind blew such a heavy gale in this vicinity that the teacher, Mrs. Frances Hancock became alarmed and moved out of the school building. Afternoon sessions were continued at the teacher's residence where all felt somewhat safer.

Mrs. Nan Hahn, who has been with the Veerkamp's for the winter was called to her home at Los Angeles on account of the illness of her daughter. He all hope Mrs. Hahn will be able to return later.

A number of our young people attended the dance Saturday night at Coloma and report a good time.

The dance was given to raise funds for the benefit of Gold Hill Grange Drill Team. A fair crowd was in attendance in spite of the stormy weather.

On the eve of March 8 the Gold Trail Grange will give their play, "A Good Girl in the Kitchen," at the Coloma community hall. A small admission charge will be made which will include dancing and refreshments.

Wayne Daniels of Vallejo spent the weekend at Gold Hill. We are glad to report Mrs. Gertrude Marchini and Mrs. Nona Chapman are both somewhat improved after a siege of bad colds.

Lee Veerkamp, who has been visiting eastern fruit markets for the most of the winter, returned to his home Friday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Panning, Mrs. Ella Norris and Mrs. Margaret Veerkamp were Sunday visitors at Mrs. Sarah Veerkamp's.

Among the local people who were transacting business in Placerville on Saturday we noted, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. John Van Alstine, Mrs. Wm. Miller, Mrs. Frances Hancock and Mrs. Alice Veerkamp.

We have been informed that Earl Blair who was sent to South America by the government some time last fall is recovering in an eastern hospital from a serious illness and operation. We understand that he and Mrs. Blair will return to their home here as soon as he is well enough to travel.

Mrs. Doris Staggs of Coloma has taken the position recently vacated by Mrs. Hahn.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Allen of the Plymouth section were visitors at the Armin Winje home on Sunday.

Mrs. Frances Hancock entertained her sister Miss Dorothy Deering and friend of Oakland over the weekend.

SHINGLE SPRINGS

Eugene Walker and Bud Walker spent Sunday at the Miller home.

The friends of Jane Harvey will regret to hear she is in the Sutter Hospital with a broken collar bone. She was in an auto accident Saturday evening in Sacramento with a group of friends. Word was received from the hospital that she was doing as well as could be expected.

Angus Dugan spent one day last week with Mrs. J. L. Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Gordon of Auburn stopped for a short time here Sunday. They were on their way to see Jane Harvey in Sacramento.

Elvin Scheiber spent the weekend with his folks here.

Mrs. J. L. Miller, Phyllis and Shirley Barton spent Saturday in Folsom at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Barton who expect to leave for camp soon.

POLLOCK PINES NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. L. Fisher entertained a group of about 75 friends last Tuesday in honor of their daughter, Lola, whose marriage to Ralph (Rip) Van Winkle took place in Reno, Nevada, Wednesday, February 25. The bride received a lovely array of useful and beautiful gifts from her many friends. Dancing and a general good time was enjoyed until the wedding party left for Reno. At

Mr. and Mrs. Van Winkle are at home to their friends at Pacific House, and all their many acquaintances join in wishing them every happiness.

The local P. T. A. unit held its regular meeting Thursday at the school, and was beautifully entertained by Miss Phillips' pupils in colonial costume, dancing a minuet. Seven advanced pupils of the tonette class performed a nice number. Election of officers resulted in the following:

Mrs. Mary Cox, president; Mrs. Wakeman, vice president; Miss M. Phillips, second vice president; Mrs. G. Niebling, secretary; Mrs. M. Mopson, treasurer.

Reports on all activities show the P. T. A. has been able to handle the lunches at the school and will continue until in April. The new addition to the school will be finished soon and there is to be a grand opening party. Date will be announced later.

The Rebekah ladies will have their card party Tuesday evening and expect the usual crowd.

Mrs. Bessie McBride and Miss N. Y. Vernon attended the Marian Anderson concert in Sacramento last Wednesday evening. They state the auditorium was filled to capacity with an attentive audience and the softly beeching, beautiful beyond description, Ave Maria, as sang by the artist held the audience spell-bound.

L. J. Viano of Lincoln, Placer county, bought five purebred Jerseys in Mendocino county.
